CHAIRMAN by Eric Hanson

Once upon a time... there was a little lost boy who decided to get together with all of his friends and discuss science fiction. From those humble beginnings we have arrived at LepreCon 16. But the basic idea behind these conventions has not changed, we still like to get together with all of our friends to talk about science fiction. And I think that we have done a great job of setting the stage for this year.

Our Guests of Honor were well chosen for their contributions to the fields of science fiction and fantasy. They are not only outstanding in each of their fields, but all three are personable, charming and enjoyable to converse with. I am confident that you will find their panels interesting and informative.

We hope that you have come to Leprecon 16 to relax and enjoy learning more about science fiction and fantasy, horror, art, japanimation and other people who are not really so different than you.

I would like to thank the Phoenix Sheraton, its employees, all of the LepreCon committee, our guests, our staff members, our volunteers and our attendees. Without all of you we could not have these conventions.

Welcome and Enjoy.

Science fiction fun in the sun!

Jim Fitzpatrick by Andrew M. Greeley

Jim Fitzpatrick's art wrestles with one of the crucial questions of our era: does modernity destroy the archaic? From the early nineteenth to the middle twentieth century, the answer has been almost unanimously affirmative. Perhaps the archaic culture could be preserved as a museum piece, an archeological curiosity, but industrialization, urbanization and secularization had eliminated it as an important dimension of contemporary life and as a major source for contemporary artistic effort.

More recently, some social scientists - I think it fair to say the most able and creative - have begun to dissent. The evidence that the archaic is alive and well, if misunderstood and ignored, is too powerful to be dismissed by the conventional wisdom of the semi-educated (university graduates). Fitzpatrick's art is based on the insight that in both the personal preconscious and in the collective culture, archaic images survive and flourish. You do not have to know who Eriu or Ethne and Grainne were, you do not have to have read their legends, you do not even have to care much about them; nonetheless they lurk in the far reaches of your brain, ready to surface when given half a chance - just as Mad Sweeney lurks marvelously in the preconscious of Seamus Heaney.

Hence Fitzpatrick's art is an exercise in revelation: he reveals the lurking images and shows that given half a chance they will break into consciousness in a subtle mixture of archaic and modern, old and new, that is surprising, compelling and delightful. He seems to be suggesting, as do all good artists of the fantastique, that you could bump into Lugh or Emer or Fann on the streets of Dublin town (or Phoenix town), perhaps this afternoon or certainly tomorrow morning. They will be wearing ordinary modern garb (or maybe punk uniforms), but look a bit more closely and you will see that they are clad in the splendor of the Tuath De or the Fir Bolg. The imagery of the Old persists wherever the Irish may be - in Ireland or in the land beyond the sea which Erik the Red in unwitting demographic prophecy called Great Ireland.

One must say a word about the Irish women in Fitzpatrick's work. They are lovely of course, but they are also fierce: Olwen with her sword, Tailltu with her spear, Boann with her sorcerous mirror, my beloved Brigid (a child/woman who pushed her determined little nose into most of my stories) with her heavy magic cup, Palu with her cat eyes. Ah, they are the kind you would not want to anger. Even when they seem most vulnerable - Moriath, Aine (patroness of unmarried women and in a strange twist of mythological confusion, the counterpart in this respect of a woman with a similar name, the grandmother of Jesus), the woman of Uinnius - you know that you had better treat them with caution and respect.

On the other hand, even the smug Grainne hints at affectionate tenderness and my Brigid has a tart tongue (as her Cormac often tells her) but sweet lips and gentle hands. It is a terrible thing to fall under the spell of a woman of the Celts. Until one considers the alternatives...

Having said that, the case has been made as best as words can make it. The rest of the argument and the best of it is in the pictures and artwork of Jim Fitzpatrick.

RICK COOK by "Mariannski" Cook Andrews

Rick Cook's (AOS)* began only 28 years ago when his fond parents. (perhaps because they knew him so well or perhaps because they could think of nothing else) gave the young man a typewriter for Christmas. True, it was a chunky manual, battleship gray except for the dark green ROYAL blazoned across the key hood, but assisted by the fact that his parents were wise enough to provide him with his own room, Rick soon began spending entire nights tapping away at story after story. Some pages would wind up in the waste basket but some would make their way into the little metal drawer in the typewriter table. Eventually these would be mailed out, only to be returned with a little slip of paper that said, "Sorry. we just can't use this. I suggest you try _____". So it went, year after year, working away in that bedroom (yes, he did finally move away from home, but that was years later - after the SCA madness and before the computer psychosis) until finally, an envelope begat a return letter, a return letter begat another letter, letters went flying back and forth across the continent in some great cosmic tennis match of fate and destiny and... and... Sorry. Anyway, Rick had a non-fiction article published in Analog, then bunches of articles published in all kinds of strange places (How would you like to be a cub reporter in Yuma? Hm-m-m-m-m-m-m-m?). Then, at last, a FICTION story in Analog, then a book (Wizard's Bane) and then another book (Limbo System) and then another book (The Wizardry Compiled) and... gee, golly, whilikers, and here he is GOH at LepreCon -- yet another fat, bearded science-fiction AOS! Step right up, folks, shake his hand and say, "Aren't you Harlan Ellison?" He'll love it. Trust me.

CRISTI SIMLA by Eric Hanson

How does one describe a friend when she is going to be in print for all of fandom to see. There are two schools of thought on this. For example I could describe her in words like perky, quick witted and cute. And these words would be accurate.

Or I could talk about all the conventions that Cristi has worked on her years of association with Fandom. Cristi has been more active in Arizona than most five people I know. Cristi has been the chair of TUSCON for more years than I can count (just shows what good a college education is these days). And in spite of all the craziness associated with running conventions, Cristi always has a smile on her face and a good answer on the tip of her tongue.

Or I could talk about the time when Cristi was desperate and asked me to be the Phan Guest of Honor at TUSCON. Now if you ask her, I was not the bottom of the barrel, Poge the Wonder Horse was below me on the list. But she treated me with all the fairness and consideration that she treats everybody else. Needless to say, the convention was great fun and from what I could see, everybody had a wonderful time. (Yes, this is a little plug. TUSCON is later in the year and if you want to attend a small convention with aspirations of being a World Class event, plan on attending).

Or I guess I could talk about some embarrassing moments that Cristi was caught in. I am sure that if we got together, we could come up with two or three hundred examples.

But the best thing to talk about is the simple fact. Cristi is a great person who has done a tremendous amount of good for Arizona fandom and if we are lucky she will be around for about a hundred more years to keep on doing what she does best.

PROGRAMMING by Doreen Webbert

LepreCon has a varied program on tap this year. For those of you with interests in art and writing (in other words, everyone) we will be featuring slide shows, seminars, workshops and panels on everything from where ideas really come from to how to market your work. Our programming runs the list from how conventions are run to the wonders of costuming.

Friday nights "Mr. Legs" contest is sure to be a scream. (Especially if you have seen my legs before, ed). Guys, put on your shorts or pull up your pants legs and lets get up on stage. Let's have lots of fun and remember that we can do the reverse of this at next year's convention.

G. Harry Stien will be telling us about the Space Plane and how our rolls in space will be changing in the next decade. Plan on seeing and hearing a lot about the next decade.

Rick Cook will be delving into the Martial Arts in real life and fiction, Cristi Simila will be showing how she stays sane while running a convention and Jim Fitzpatrick will be wowing us with his works of art.

Programming will be located in the Apache A & B rooms and the Navajo A room on the second floor and the Mohave B room in the basement. The pocket program with exact schedules and items is available with your registration items. Any changes will be shown on the schedules posted outside the individual rooms.

We hope you enjoy this years LepreCon. If you have any ideas for next year, stop by and talk to us. We are always happy to hear your ideas. Enjoy!

Play PAST LIVES...

If You Dare to Uncover Secrets of Your Past!

Play PAST LIVES...the game that reveals lives you could have lived before. PAST LIVES is a fun and fascinating boardgame that takes you back through the shadows of history; through the Industrial Age, back through the Age of Kings and the Dark Ages to Ancient Times. Each age has treasures, twists of fate and pitfalls unique to that time period.

Adding to the enjoyment of the game is its magnificent artistic treatment. Hundreds of game cards bear the design and art talent of David Edward Byrd, the only living U.S. artist whose work hangs in the Louvre.

Everyone begins play as "Scum of the Earth." With adept play and good deeds, players accumulate points as they ascend through the ranks of the "Commonplace & Vulgar," "Heroes & Heroines," and finally to the "Great & Saintly." At game's end, players refer to the Book of Past Lives, which details hundreds of actual lives from history. How well you've played the game determines who you could have been in a previous life. PAST LIVES...play it if you dare to know whether you were a king or a knave; a saint or a strumpet; a poet or only a peasant.

Up to 8 can play! Available wherever games are sold!

ART SHOW by Ray Gish & Eileen Phillips

Once again LepreCon 16 will offer Phoenix fans the best of science fiction / fantasy art. We will be in the Navajo B - D rooms up the escalator. Opening time on Friday will be noon and we will stay open until 9:00pm. We are looking forward to the return of lots of old friends like Alan Gutierrez, Alicia Austin, Melody Rondeau, Armand Cabrera and Patricia Davis.

Hours on Saturday will be 10:00am to 6:00pm and on Sunday we will be open from 10:00am to 12:00noon for any last-minute bidders. So come in early and often to feast your eyes on all the wonderful work presented by our artist friends.

The Art Auction will be held at 1:00pm on Sunday in the Navajo A room.

Buyer pick-up will be after the auction on Sunday. Pieces with two or more bids will go to auction.

VOLUNTEERS by Matthew Frederick

Live, from Rockefeller Center in New York, it's a Long Weekend with Matthew Frederick... This weekend Matt's guests are Zsa Zsa Gabor, Eric "Bud Please" Hanson, and YOU, the entire membership of LepreCon, volunteering to help... Well, I don't expect every guest to make it to my show, but any of you that help out at the convention will be heartily thanked. For each 3 hours worked you will receive a free meal in the staff lounge! With 12 hours you'll get a membership to next year's convention!

MASQUERADE by Gail Wolfenden-Steib

The Masquerade just seems to be getting better each year, and I believe that we will again impress the socks off you. We have scheduled the Masquerade to start at 7:30pm on Saturday night in the Grand Ballroom on the third floor (up both sets of escalators). In addition to the grand march of all these great costume creations, we have planned a special half time treat that should help put some "steel" in your resolve. So come on up and give your favorite contestant your support.

On Saturday from 2:00pm to 4:00pm we will have a Tech rehearsal in the Grand Ballroom. This is open only to contestants. All contestants must have their paperwork filled out and turned in at this time. You must plan on making this meeting so that our tech crew can go over your presentation with you and insure that everything is to your liking. At 6:30 on Saturday, all contestants must meet in the Masquerade Green Room which will be Apache A on the second floor. This is the room from which we will do all the staging.

Last but not least I want to acknowledge all those unsung heroes, regular volunteers and lunatics that have helped me make this a fun experience. Your help has made it all worth while. Thank you.

Coming Soon...

JAPANIMATION by Tom Perry

We'd like to invite you to drop by the Japanese Animation room. It's a great place to relax and sit down after spending hours on your feet. You can also see some of the world's finest animation.

Some people wonder why we show "cartoons" at a SF convention. Japanese animation is not just for kids, it is intended for people of all ages. Many of the Japanese animation videos that we will be showing are excellent science fiction / fantasy. There is a great deal of action, interesting characters, good music scores, and frequently thought-provoking ideas of possible futures. The overall quality of the stories is much higher than we are used to seeing on American TV. It is not unusual for the Japanese to adapt a literary work into animated form. For example, they are currently adapting Robert Heinlein's Starship Troopers as an animated series.

The art styles from Japanese animation are becoming more accepted by many science fiction / fantasy artists in America. Japanese comic art styles have long influenced some of the most popular American comic artists - Frank Miller, and Wendy Pini among others. The English language translations of Japanese comics such as Akira, Grey, Mai and Xenon are having an increasing impact on American comics.

Japanese animation has also had a major impact on many of the games that we play. Many of the Nintendo games are based directly upon an animated series. The same is true of many arcade games: such as Battletech, Robotech, Mekton, and Teenagers from Outer Space, all heavily based on material from Japanese animation.

This year, we again have a significant number of videos that will be subtitled to increase your viewing pleasure. Now you can not only watch the beautiful animation, you can understand why the characters are acting as they do.

For parents with children: as long as your child is reasonably well-behaved, we don't mind if you leave your child in the animation room while you go see some other part of the con. However, please remember that our program has been selected to appeal to an audience of young adults and as such includes scenes with violence and/or sex that you may not find suitable for your child. This is particularly true of programs which are scheduled during the later hours in the evening. Many of these programs would have an "R" rating in the theater. If you have any questions about the content of any particular item on our program, just ask the person who is currently in charge of the room.

But we still agree that the best reason for watching Japanese animation is that it's FUN. So drop on by and see what all the excitement is about.

DEALERS ROOM by Dave Hiatt

Greetings from the Dealer Dungeon! Yes, make sure you follow the signs: up the escalator and down the elevator - or out into the cruel world of downtown Phoenix and down the street, and hopefully you will find all the treasures you have dreamed of. Our dealers for LepreCon 16 include Adam's Books, Alicia Austin, the Rakish Blade, DAG Productions, Leading Edge Games, Sapphire Legends, Roderick's Pirate Plunder, Moirandall, Motley Merchandise, Barry Bard's Fantasy - Past, Present and Future, Roaming Panther Games, Morning Star, Mere Dragons, Peggy Zimmerman's Incredible Silver Jewelry, Nighthawk Studios, TARDIS, GrapXpress, Crunchy Frog Enterprises, PFFS, Movie Memorabilia from Joel Block, Hagar the Horrible, Bent Cover Books, and M.R. Hildebrand.

An added attraction - this year the dealer's room will feature autograph sessions with authors in attendance, and an author's corner which will feature readings and the opportunity to get up close and personal with your favorite author.

So come on down, browse, spend money, get some books signed, and support the dealers.

WESTWOOD ASSOCIATES

Since its establishment five years ago, Westwood Associates has established a reputation in the industry as a leading developer of entertainment and education software, creating imaginative and versatile products for IBM PC, Macintosh, Amiga, Atari ST, Apple II/IIs, Commodore 64/128, Nintendo and Sega Genesis. Based in Las Vegas, Westwood's technical expertise, professionalism and quality game development have been recognized by such major publishers as Strategic Simulations, Infocom, Mediagenic, Tengen, Walt Disney Computer Software, Electronic Arts and ShareData. Among the top-selling originals developed by Westwood are BattleTech, Hillsfar, Mines of Titan, Nightmare on Elm Street and DragonStrike.

BATTLETECH

You are Jason Youngblood, an inexperienced 18-year-old BattleMechwarrior who must venture into the hostile universe of the 31st century Successor States. Your only defense against the endless violence of the Succession Wars is your 'Mech, a mighty combat tank of the future, standing over three stories tall and armed with enough firepower to level any major city. And with enemies coming at every angle, and friends too few and far between, you'll need every bit of help you can get.

BattleTech is a dynamic role-playing fantasy which takes place in FASA's phenomenal futuristic universe. The easy-to-use tactical combat system with its intuitive and flexible user interface bring you closer to the battle, where you can let the computer control your 'Mech or take the action into your own hands. Emotive Japanese-style outtakes enhance BattleTech's beautiful graphics, and the richly detailed story draws you into the dramatic adventures of the future. BattleTech! Live the excitement of the 31st century.

NIGHTMARE ON ELM STREET

He haunted you in the movie theaters and then followed you home to the TV set.. and now he plagues your dreams through your computer! Freddy's back and as wickedly devious as ever in A Nightmare on Elm Street. Haunting graphics and ghoulis sound effects make this game hard to distinguish from reality, and as you fight the evil Freddy, you'll constantly be wondering -- is it real, or is it a nightmare?

MEMBERSHIP by Julie Douglas

Membership badges must be visibly worn while in convention function space. Please watch your membership badge. If your badge is lost, check the lost and found in Convention Ops. There's a good chance that they have found it. If a badge is lost and not found, the replacement cost of the membership is the same as the at-the-door price. Membership badges remain the property of LepreCon 16 until the close of the convention. LepreCon 16 reserves the right to revoke membership privileges and destroy membership badges for cause. Membership fees are not refundable.

GAMES & DIVERSIONS by Don Harrington

Welcome to Games & Diversions at the Sheraton! Be sure and drop by during the convention to play a game, win prizes in a tournament, peruse the entries in the miniatures painting competition, buy and sell games at the used game auction, enter our door prize drawing, or just say "hi" to our friendly and enthusiastic staff.

Don't miss the chance to talk to some of our exciting guests:

Scott Haring - Scott is Games Editor at TSR/West, the newest west coast offices of TSR. He has worked in gaming for seven years, and been playing games for twice as many years. Scott's latest projects include the new comics modules (game modules with illustrated stories included).

Dave McKenzie - Dave is president of Leading Edge Games, producers of Phoenix Command and Living Steel. His latest project, which Dave will be demonstrating at the convention, are the games set in the Aliens universe. These include board games and role-playing rules.

Mike Stackpole - Michael is a writer, game designer, and skeptic among other things. His latest projects include the books known as the Blood of Kerensky trilogy and a series of stories set in the Shadowrun universe.

Thanks to all the people who helped to make Games & Diversions a success at LepreCon 16, especially the following companies who contributed prizes and merchandise: Avalon Hill Game Company, Fantasy Games Unlimited and Waterloo, FASA, The Game Depot, GDW, Iron Crown Enterprises, Leading Edge Games, Mayfair Games, Palladium Books, the Role-Playing Gamers Association from TSR and Steve Jackson Games.

HOTEL by Eric Hanson

We are pleased to have our convention in the Phoenix Sheraton. This hotel has some of the best staff you could wish for.

For your dining pleasure, the hotel is pleased to provide the Sand Painter Dining Room and Lounge. They offer specialty dining with superior atmosphere and service. They serve a fabulous lunch and dinner and a special treat is their Sunday champagne brunch.

For something on a more moderate setting, the Cactus Cafe provides breakfast, lunch and dinner and those some-times needed in-between snacks served in a bright and cheerful setting.

The Adam's Lounge is billed as the Grandest Bar in Town. Come on down and see what they mean. It's a great place to unwind.

VIDEO ROOM by John Williams

Where, here...where, there...where, everywhere. Yes the Best Video Room since last LepreCon.

We'll be having some special shows. Tom will have some cartoons for the young and old, including something from the war years. (You have to guess which war). Also, Jim Groat has promised to bring up some special videos from Student Animation that the teachers would not approve of, but we are sneaking them by Eric.

See movies where the guy gets the girl, the guy loses the girl to a guy who is a card, see guy wear a cape and hood, see guy get girl again. Watch the heart rending version while some father and his son see the world from a balloon, a plane and a motorcycle.

These are just a few of the plot lines from some of the movies we plan on showing this weekend. So come check out the Video Room over in Hopi A. We will have a schedule posted in the Pocket Program and updates outside of the room.

MEET MIKE STACKPOLE AT THE CON THIS WEEKEND!

SECURITY by James Kosky

At the risk of sounding redundant - the thing that should be in everyone's mind is "Use Common Sense!"

The standard rules for social behavior at a con include:

Real or realistic looking firearms are not allowed in the hotel. Please do not bring them.

Bladed weapons and props must be sheathed and peacebonded. The sheath must be a hard, protective cover to protect all from the point and the edge. Bladed weapons may not be drawn in any public / common area of the hotel. If you draw it, it will be removed to a safe place in the Convention office for the duration of the convention; you can reclaim it after the convention has ended.

Membership badges must be worn in a visible location on your costume at all times while you are in convention areas. Admittance to convention areas will include your following this rule. Anti-social behavior will not be allowed. Remember that your neighbor and hotel has rights and you should not infringe upon them. This includes shouting, running and fighting.

Glass is not allowed in the pool area - this is for your own and others safety. No alcohol in their original containers in public / common areas - this is to comply with state laws.

Remember, attending a Con is a privilege, not a right. We reserve the right to revoke membership for cause. Your membership badge remains the property of the convention until the close of the Con. In the past we have worked to make conventions fun for people with a wide variety of interests. Thank you in advance for helping us make Cons an event like the old days where all fans were friends and all were welcome.

COMPUTER ROOM by Dan Smith

Hey, are you looking for NAKED WOMEN, large quantities of BOOZE and bathtubs filled with LIME JELLO? If so, stay away from the computer room. All we have there are some of the best games you can shake a joystick at. Returning to the computer room after a successful run at the last convention are: SIM CITY, FALCON-AT, BATTLE CHESS and 688 ATTACK SUB. Also appearing are POPULOUS, MECHWARRIOR, MODEM WARS and many more. Also returning is ADULT NIGHT which features some state of the art graphics, digitizing and animation. This will be on Saturday night after the Masquerade and you must be 18 years of age to enter or you must have parental permission. (And the parent must talk to me.)

So come on down and see what we have to offer.
